Urban Farm Hand

This position entails all of the day to day tasks required to operate a small-scale urban farming business. The student will assist with field tasks including bed prep, seeding, transplanting, weeding and harvesting. The position will also include processing vegetables and flowers, market setup, and interacting with customers and community members. Our learning objectives include:

Practicum student will gain knowledge and experience re:

The operations of a small farm business, technical farming skills (focus on ecological growing practices and farming using hand tools), plant and soil care and maintenance, teamwork and effective communication, and more!

Applicants, ideally, will have some experience working outdoors in a farm or garden setting, but this is not required. The student will have a keen interest in ecological food production, a good work ethic, and a healthy sense of fun! Given the multi-site nature of our farm, some flexibility and patience is also appreciated.

To apply, please send resume and cover letter by email to: Liana Glass (she/her) c/o info@citybeetfarm.com

This post is in person, in Vancouver, primarily in Mount Pleasant/Riley Park and in Southlands. This post is for 3 credits (9 hours per week), and up to 4 positions are available.
